

April 23, 2019

WORKSHOP NEWSFLASH

In this Issue:

- Workshop Detail
- Registration Information

Rensselaer Faculty and Staff Workshop- Using Google Earth on the Web with Chrome

Google Earth allows you to visit any place around the world using satellite imagery from your classroom or office. This workshop will review some of the basic features of Google Earth such as, using the navigation controls, search, voyager, my places and sharing locations. If you discuss locations around the world or work on projects where members need to report on locations, this tool can be perfect to incorporate. Google Earth is an exciting way to promote interaction and discussion.

There are several versions of Google Earth. This workshop will be focusing on the web version using Google Chrome.

This workshop will be held on Tuesday, April 30th from 1:30 pm - 2:30 pm in the Beta Classroom located on the first floor of the Library.

Maureen Fodera (Office of Undergraduate Education) will be presenting this workshop.

Please register by Thursday, April 25th. Space is limited.

