The 2019 Horizon Report is now published by EDUCASE however, it was established by the New Media Consortium (NMC). This report offers guidance for educators, higher education leaders, administrators, policy makers, and technologists on education in technology. The report focuses on six key trends, challenges and developments in technology for higher education which is ranked by leaders from across higher education institutes. You should find value in this report along with ideas of what seems to be coming as we consider technology in our classrooms. Happy Reading!
